

Images Of Colorado Lagoon

Friends of the Colorado Lagoon wants to showcase in images the rich history of one of the last wetlands in Long Beach.

To accomplish that goal, the nonprofit coalition is asking the community to help by thumbing through their photo albums or digging through boxes in garages and attics for pictures of Colorado Lagoon. Selected items will be featured in “Images of Colorado Lagoon Past and Present,” an exhibit that will be on display on Nov. 15 at FOCL’s fund-raising dinner for the establishment of a marine science education center at the lagoon. Dr. Jerry Schubel, president and CEO of the Aquarium of the Pacific, will be the guest speaker.

Submissions for Images of Colorado Lagoon Past and Present can be in any format — prints, slides, negatives or digital — and either color or black and white. Artistic renderings and even movies will be accepted. The images must be of Colorado Lagoon but are not limited to scenic shots. The deadline is Nov. 10.

To submit an image or images, fill out a form that is available at www.coloradolagoon.org or by calling 261-9058.

—Amy Bentley-Smith